What is a LED Light?

LED stands for light-emitting diode. That is, simply, a semiconductor device that converts electricity to light by using the movement of electrons. LEDs were invented in Russia in the 1920s. They were put in practical use in the United States in the 1960s by General Electric. In the late 1960s, Monsanto Corporation was the first to mass-produce LEDs, and Hewlett-Packard used them in its early calculators.

LED lighting is a lamp or other light that uses LEDs as a source of illumination. Most lighting comes from an incandescent or fluorescent light bulb. Different than the traditional bulb, LEDs can be put into traditional lamps and used like most other light bulbs. They are much more efficient than incandescent or fluorescent bulbs.

Winjet Electronics

The housing is made of powder coated, die cast aluminum. The entire housing act as a giant heat sink to dissipate heat generated from LEDs.

Spot and flood beam pattern available in different combinations.

Thermal conductive PCB to absorb heat away from LEDs during operation to maximize LED life.

Durable polycarbonate lens for high impact resistance and scratch resistance.

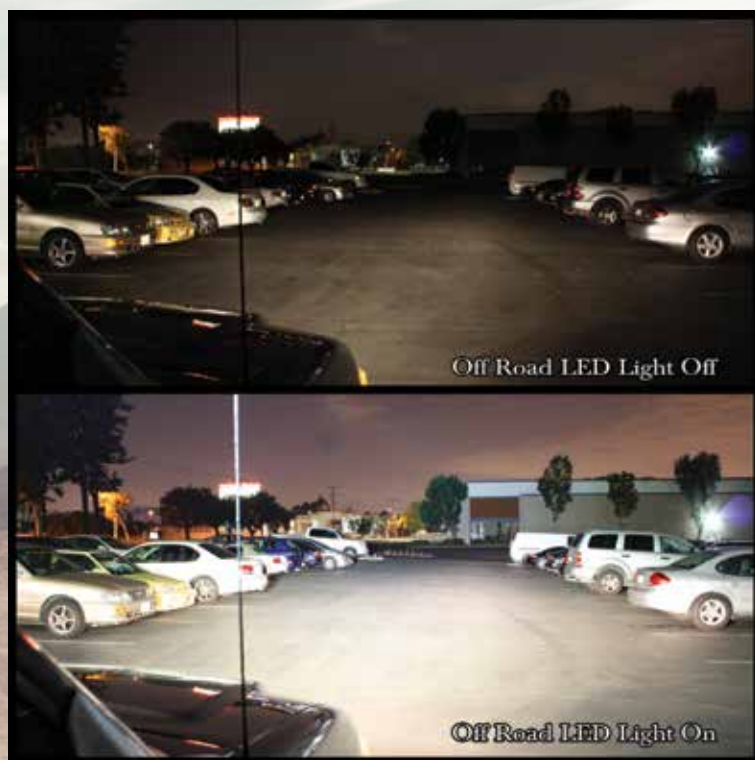

IP 67 compliant housing, dust proof and water resistant. Salt-spray tested to 3,000 hours.

3 Watt CREE LED, each with an output life of over 30,000 hours. Light your way with 1000+ lumens.

Integrated electronics is fully protected against water, dust and the elements, broadening the operating temperature to -40° C to +80° C.

Difference between LED lights and bulb lights

Different	LED Lights	Bulb Lights
Brightness	950 - 30,000 lumen	1000 - 1800 lumen
Lifespan	30,000+ Hours Longer lifespan for extended use	1,000 Hours Standard lifespan
Appearance	5000-6500K Ultra white daylight color	3200K "Warm" yellow color
Energy Consumption	Low	High

The automotive lighting industry has evolved since halogen light bulbs. LEDs lights have become the brighter, longer lasting and by far the most popular lights in the past few years. Due to its low heat emission, compared to traditional halogens, they have been fitted into a wide variety of housing for applications such as automotive, construction sites, camping and even boats. Winjet proudly present our new line of LED lights. There LED working lights can be just as bright as your regular halogen bulbs at 1000 lumens and can reach up to 30,000 lumens with our 36" light bar.
